Samdal Elderberry

Plants are vigorous, producing long shoots from soil level one growing season and bearing fruit the next. These are removed after bearing and replaced by the current year's growth. This makes the plant easy to prune and manage as a bush. Large fruit clusters with good flavor ripen in August each year. Berries have very high anthocyanin content....very good for you! This is the more productive variety, but both varieties are required for cross pollination. (Samdal and Samyl)

Cortland Apple

Cortland apple trees are very similar in size and growth characteristics to McIntosh apples. The tree is spreading with an upright, vase-shaped form, medium in vigor and medium in height, with semi-dwarf trees growing 15 to 20 feet tall and spreading 10 to 15 feet wide. The growing season length is about 153 days. The trees have moderate resistance to fire blight and apple scab. Cortland apples have mid-season bloom beginning in April with pink buds followed by abundant white flowers. Trees usually begin to bear after 4 to 6 years. Large red fruits are ready to pick in September. They have a sweet taste with some tartness. Cortlands are reliable annual bearers.
